WILSON MAKING LITTLE IMPRESSION
ON SENATORS OPPOSING THE LEAGUESOME RESENTMENT IS SHOWN OVER HIS
FAILURE TO ATTEMPT TO CRACK
THE HARD NUTS FIRST

MOSTLY UNCHANGED IN MIND

WASHINGTON, July 18—President Wilson continued his attack on the opponents of the League of Nations today when he summoned four more senators to the White House to discuss with them the desirability of the league. The senators summoned today were Kellogg, of Minnesota; Kenyon, of Iowa; Capper, of Kansas, and McNary, of Oregon. Kellogg is known to be in favor of the principles of such a league. Kenyon is in the doubtful class, McNary is desirous of some such combination of a league while Capper is in favor of the league with reservation. All of the senators summoned are open to conviction.

The President will use the same line of argument he used yesterday when he talked to four senators. It is said that he will not request them to change their mind or make any plea that they support his acts at Paris other than to explain to them why certain clauses were inserted in the covenant and give inside information as to the workings of the peace conference. Some resentment was felt in Washington over the president inviting first those who were known to be open to conviction instead of trying to break down the objections loudly voiced by out and out league opponents.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Wilson inaugurated his series of conferences with Republican senators by which he hopes to gain supporters of the League of Nations by summoning Senators Porter J. McCumber, of North Dakota, Knute Nelson, of Minnesota and LeRoyne Colt, of Rhode Island.

After leaving the White House, the three senators declared that their opinions were not changed by their talk with the President. This is what the senators had to say:

Senator McCumber: "My conversation with the President did not change my opinion at all. I still believe reservations are necessary."

Senator Nelson: "We had a very friendly talk, but it gave me no new light on the subject. I believe reservations should be made."

Senator Colt: "I am in favor of clear and distinct safeguards on the Monroe Doctrine and on domestic questions such as that of immigration, as well as some action in respect to Article 10."

The President in his talk dwelt with great emphasis upon the difficulties which attended the settlement at the conference. He explained that many of the details were the result of compromise and unless there had been yielding upon all sides the final negotiations of the treaty would have been impossible.

The President also touched upon the Chautauque decision, which has aroused so much bitterness in the Senate and expressed a desire to make a full explanation of the circumstances under which the settlement was made. It is understood this explanation will be made in the form of a formal communication which the President will send to the Senate early next week.

The fact was impressed upon the senators by the President that there was no desire upon his part to present the Chautauque matter in any other light than as a compromise which was necessary for the successful termination of the treaty negotiations. To Senator Colt in particular the President explained that there are some details of the Shantung case that cannot be stated; the explanation it was stated "will be decidedly complex."

As a matter of reservation on the treaty, the President made clear to the senators that his chief objection to this course was that the adoption of reservations by the Senate might open up the door to all sorts of reservations by other powers, tending to upset the whole treaty. It was stated by one of the senators that the President agreed with the idea that certain reservations would be desirable if they could be made without prejudicing the execution of the treaty as it now stands.

Senator McCumber said that the President gave him a considerable amount on confidential explanation. The President's talk, he said, tended to develop the method by which conclusions on certain of the provisions in the treaty were reached.

LOYAL LEGION
ADOPTS OFFICIAL
BUTTON EMBLEM

A button adopted by the National Executive committee of the American Legion as the official emblem of the national organization of four million American veterans of the Great War will be distributed in a few days to members of the Legion through state branches and local Posts throughout the country. An enlarged design of the button, unless changed by the National Convention at Minneapolis in November, will also be used as the basis for the official seal of the Legion.

The button is three quarters of an inch in diameter. It consists of a central small replica of the regulation bronze five pointed star discharge button, surrounded by a narrow circular band of blue enamel, containing the words "American Legion" in gold letters. The button has a fluted gold edge. The central replica of the discharge button will be replaced instead of bronze for members of the Legion who were wounded in the service.

The necessary steps will be taken by the Legislative committee of the American Legion, headed by former Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee and former Congressman Thomas W. Miller, of Delaware, to have the emblem copyrighted and its use fully protected.

AND THE VILLAIN STILL
ELUDES 'EM

Well, there is a general gum shoe police alarm out for the son of a gun who nailed those Chautauque signs on some two hundred telephone poles about town in direct violation of the borough ordinances.

Ignorance of the law excuses no man and as it will be impossible for the offender to plead intoxication now, he will have to pay the penalty when found. The Chautauque begins July 29th this year and lasts a week, but the sign tacker will not be at liberty to enjoy this year's exceptionally high class program if he falls into the Mayor's eager clutches. The signs will remain up and a fine of $10 for each be assessed against guarantors of the Chautauque which serves to suggest that, to paraphrase an old time homily, uneasy lies the head that tops a guarantor's frame.

BULGARIAN REPARATION

PARIS, July 18—The Allied reparation bill to be presented to Bulgaria will be from one to two billion francs. The peace treaty for Bulgaria was merely completed today.

BUILDING TRADES STRIKE AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, ILL., July 18.—One hundred thousand workers in the building and street construction trades were locked out by employers this morning when they failed to report for work after the employers' organization had made a counter offer of higher wages. The men presented a demand recently for a twenty cent per hour increase in wages. The employers granted an increase of twelve cents per hour and notified the employees to return. When they failed to return this morning notices of a lockout were posted. The lockout ties up building and construction projects approximating fifty million dollars. Six hundred thousand dollars in daily wages will be lost to the men. Secretary of the A. F. of L. announced that the wants of the locked-out men would be taken care of by other trade unions and by an appeal to the general public.

The last big lockout in Chicago occurred in 1899 when thirty thousand men were idle for a period of fifteen months. Should this lockout be enforced for only a short time at least fifty thousand additional men will be thrown idle in lath mills, lumber yards, cement works and other industries closely allied to the building trades.

STATE GAME PROTECTOR HERE

Traveling State Game Protector Kinter B. Rodgers, of Johnston, one of the oldest in point of service and most efficient attaches of the Pennsylvania State Game Commission, was a Clearfield visitor yesterday and today. Mr. Rodgers knows his business from "soup to nuts" and when he once gets on the trail of a game or fish violator he never lets up until the culprit is landed, not over around his home territory game law violators are becoming few and far between. In fact when a "poacher" learns that Rodgers is after him, that is enough; he simply emulates Davy Crockett's coon and comes down at once.

Some Clearfield county tin horn sports may have reason to remember Mr. Rodgers' visit.

WEST SIDE POKER JOINT PULLED

The police pulled a "poker joint" in the Third Ward about 10:15 Wednesday night. The trap was sprung a little too early and as a result the proprietor and but one customer were toiling when the officers entered. The gamblers were before Mayor Chase last evening and the fellow who ran the house got off with a $15.00 fine, while the guest paid just half as much.

PHILADELPHIA BANK CLOSES DOORS

HARRISBURG, July 18.—The North Penn bank of Philadelphia was closed today by State Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher. The commissioner sent a deputy to Philadelphia last night who conducted an investigation and ordered the doors closed. The bank had deposits of $1,000,000 and had extended its business to slow assets.

18,000 TROOPS ARRIVE
NEW YORK CITY, July 18.—Eighteen thousand troops are scheduled to arrive here today on five transports. Two have arrived, the Northern Pacific and the Kaiserin August Victoria. Three more will dock today, the Ohioan, the Liberator and the Manchuria.

RAILS STRONGER AT OPENING

NEW YORK, July 18.—Strength in rails featured in the opening of the stock exchange. U. S. S. opened at 112, off ¼. Central Leather 110½, off 1. American Smelting 87½, off ¼. Mexican Petroleum 197, up 1. Baldwin 114½, off ½.

TOTS SWALLOW LYSOL—DIE

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., July 18.—Edward Ballon, aged three, and his baby sister aged three months found a bottle of Lysol and drank the contents last night. Both died early today.

IT'S UP TO BILL

BERLIN, July 16 (Delayed).—A Berlin paper says it has learned authoritatively that Holland will deliver up the kaiser only upon his own request.

LIQUOR INTERESTS
WILL DEFY VIEW
OF CRAWFORD

PITTSBURGH, July 17, 1919.—The Pittsburgh Brewing Company and the liquor interests willing to follow its lead will defy United States Attorney R. L. Crawford in the matter of beer of less than half of 1 per cent. alcoholic content and a renewal of the fight in which it was thought the liquor men had surrendered will take place probably today or tomorrow.

The brewing company officials declared their intention yesterday and their declaration was speedily followed by an announcement from the district attorney that he will proceed with his program of making information. During the day C. A. Fagan, attorney for the brewing company, announced that he had received information from Washington showing the existence of a different kind of law than that proclaimed by the district attorney. To this Mr. Crawford declined to make any reply, but it is believed that his intention remains unshaken and that a very brief time will see new and vigorous developments.

New Beer Poor Seller
A new element in the situation, however, has been furnished by the fact that the saloons and the low alcoholic content beer available. Many of them remained closed yesterday or opened only to close again very speedily, and while much of this was due to the fear of prosecution, there were not a few who declared that it was no use to fight for less than half per cent beer because the drinkers would not drink it anyhow.

THIRD WARD HOSE CO.
FESTIVAL

The festival and victory flag raising of the Third Ward Hose company will be held on the lawn at the hose house Monday evening, July 28th. An entertaining program is being prepared for the occasion and everybody is invited to participate.

The Third Ward boys have reached the very bottom of their "strong box" and as even such generous institutions as volunteer fire companies need a dollar or two occasionally for incidental expenses they hope to realize some change at their festival which will be incidental to the flag raising and speaking program.

Those Third Ward lads take a delight in coming to your aid when their services are needed and they will appreciate a little reciprocity on your part on the evening of the 28th, and incidentally give you your money's worth in the way of refreshments and entertainment.

HOME FROM COLUMBUS

Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Leipold, Mrs. Jean Shaw Bailey, and Miss Clara Shaw have returned from their motor trip to the Columbus centenary. Dick Leipold, who was a guide during the centenary, accompanied them home.

Madagascar has the only oxen cavalry regiment in the world.

MICKIE SAYS

MICKIE, HERE'S A NEWS ITEM TO HELP YOU UP.—JOHN WHOOSIT, OUR ENTERPRISING MAIN STREET MERCHANT, SPENT LAST WEEK IN THE METROPOLIS PURCHASING A FINE STOCK OF GOODS FOR HIS RAPIDLY GROWING TRADE.

HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Corporal Edward Lietzinger arrived home from France last evening. Eddie was a truck driver with Colonel Fred B. Kerr's Twenty-third Engineers. He spent more than eighteen months overseas. His father motored over to Tyrone yesterday afternoon and brought the returning soldier back over the mountain a couple of hours ahead of the late train.

Sgt. Frederick, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lietzinger's other boy in the service landed at Charleston, S. C., and is expected home today or tomorrow. "Ted" was overseas with the radio signal corps.

OPENING OF NEW
"HOTEL JORDAN"
HUGE SUCCESS

A total of 257 guests accepted Proprietor Ralph Jordan's invitation to take dinner with him at the opening of his main dining rooms at the newly remodeled and rebuilt Wiltner Inn hotel or Jordan Cafe last evening.

Mr. Jordan, who has so successfully managed the restaurant at the Wiltner Inn property for so many years, succeeded in getting control of the entire Wiltner Inn property and at an expense exceeding ten thousand dollars has converted the hotel property into one of the newest, most modern and best equipped European hotels to be found anywhere in this section of the State.

The hotel adjoins the old original restaurant, Clearfield's most popular eating house, which will also be maintained as of yore. The room next to the restaurant has been fitted up as a dining room and in addition is equipped with a handsome soda fountain. This dining room was opened about the first of the month.

The main and private dining rooms were not ready for opening until last evening because of the failure to receive some of the equipment for same. The main dining room occupies the former office of the old Wiltner Inn and a private dining room joins it in the rear.

The dining rooms are elegantly furnished, the furniture being the same style throughout. Everything is of the best and spick and span new.

The walls and interior generally are handsomely decorated while a system of wall and individual table lighting adds to the beauty of the rooms.

The dining rooms will seat 97 comfortably and as the Jordan Cafe fills a long-felt want in Clearfield will no doubt be generally patronized.

Proprietor Jordan served a special chicken dinner for the opening last evening and excellent viands and better perfect service more than satisfied and pleased the large number of guests and "Jordan's" specially invited friends. Knight's Saxophone Orchestra furnished delightful music during the dinner hours, their soloists obliging with a number of fine songs.

"The Jordan" will have 25 rooms for guests and these are all newly fitted up in the same style and high-class plan that marks the place throughout. These rooms have been filled every night since opening and "The Jordan" has already earned an enviable reputation with the traveling public.

Proprietor Jordan is to be congratulated upon his new venture and his host of friends throughout this section of the state will wish him unbounded success.

FIFTY-EIGHTH WEDDING
ANNIVERSARY

On Saturday, July 19, 1919, Mrs. Eljah Blankley, of Centre, Decatur township, Clearfield, one of the best known and most estimable women of this locality, will celebrate her eightieth birthday anniversary, and incidentally the fifty-eighth anniversary of her wedding. She was born in Derbyshire, England, and since coming to America thirty-eight years ago has lived practically ever since at Centre. Of her thirteen children eight are living: Richard, of Bayonne, N. J.; Harry, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Samuel, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Geo. Thomas, of Altoona; Mrs. S. Wheatley, of Philadelphia; Mrs. G. W. Brandt, of Hollidaysburg; James, of Buffalo, and George, of Curwensville.

NAGASAKI, JAPAN, July 18.—The wierdest murder mystery in the history of Japan has been solved with the confession of Pokichi Hori, a coal miner, who declares he is the man who killed six women in his community during the last several years. Each of the victims when found had been mutilated and a quantity of flesh taken from the right limb. Hori claims to have eaten this flesh. He is about sixty years of age.

ONLY TWO ARRESTS FOR DRUNKENNESS AT DUBOIS
SINCE JULY FIRST

The City of DuBois is reaping untold benefits from prohibition. A drunk man is indeed a rarity. Only two have been arrested since July 1st. Yesterday a human derelict was sighted by one of the citizens and a crowd assembled to view the unlucky cuss who was experiencing the joys of the old days "before the war". The first fellow to spy him shouted, "Come on ladies and gentlemen, and see the wonder of the city, a man who is unable to navigate a straight line. Formerly very plentiful, but now a rarity. See him before he is out of sight."

PLAN LABOR CONFERENCE TO BE HELD ON PEACE TREATY PLANS

WASHINGTON, July 18—Plans for the International Labor Conference to be held under the labor clauses of the peace treaty are under way. Dr. James Shottwell, American representative on the organizing committee. The four principal topics to be taken up come under the following heads:

- First—An eight hour day throughout the world.
- Second—State help for the unemployed.
- Third—Women in industry.
- Fourth—Children in industry.

Each nation is to send four delegates, two representing the government, one representing capital and one representing labor.

GOMPERS GIVES ENGLAND VIEWS ON
PROHIBITION AND IRISH QUESTION

LONDON, July 18.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, arrived at Southampton today on the Mauretania and shortly after arriving he gave an interview in which he declared regarding prohibition: "It is all rot to think you can compel a country to be dry." Speaking of Ireland, Gompers said: "I have only good wishes for England but there is a general feeling that the Irish question should be settled."

GOVERNMENT OF BELA KUN HAS BEEN
OVERTHROWN. WHITES MAY ATTACK

PARIS, July 18.—Dispatches from Vienna today state that Bela Kun, War Minister and virtual dictator of Austria Hungary has been overthrown and that General Bohm and Herr Lander have assumed control. The Bolsheviks is reported to be in danger of the White Army composed principally of peasants.

CONGRESS MAKES BIG INCREASE IN
MONEY TO EDUCATE SERVICE MEN

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Senate Appropriations Committee today voted to report favorably the Sundry Civil bill as passed by the House. This measure was vetoed by President Wilson on the first passage by both houses. It then carried an appropriation of $6,000,000 for the vocational training of soldiers and sailors of the world war. The presidential veto called for an appropriation of $12,000,000. The new measure calls for $14,000,000, or $2,000,000 more than the president recommended.

BILLS CHANGING SCHOOL CODE
APPROVED

HARRISBURG, PA., July 17.—Physical training in elementary public schools of the state is made mandatory upon the school districts thru the approval by Gov. Sprout of the Hickernell bill. The measure was one of six providing amendments to the school code that were signed by the Governor today. The others are the Armstrong bill for an increase from $1 to not more than $5 in the school tax in second, third and fourth class districts, and amending the present school laws relative to medical inspection; the Martin bill, fixing the salary of the attendance officer in first class district, at not less than $1,200 a year; the Crow bill, changing the appointment of the board of trustees of the state normal schools from the state board of education to the superintendent of public instruction; the Dewit bill, providing that any teacher who has held a professional certificate for ten years may teach subjects embraced in the certificate without further examinations, and the Woodruff bill, providing for the granting of a provisional college certificate to a graduate in music with the degree of bachelor of music of a college or university approved by the college and university council who has pursued a classical course of studies in addition to the music course.

JOHNSON ASKS
HABEAS CORPUS
HEARING AT ONCE

Habeas Corpus proceedings were begun this morning by Attorney James A. Gleason in behalf of Walter C. Johnson, the DuBois man who was lodged in jail yesterday by Constable Leslie of Union township, charged with felonious rape.

Johnson's wife, of three months, and his attorney visited him in the jail this morning. He stoutly maintains his innocence and declares he was in the company of his wife and other people all day Sunday and at the time the alleged crime was committed he was at his home in DuBois.

The petition for a habeas corpus hearing was filed with the Prothonotary but in the absence of Judge Bell no time was fixed, but it will likely be held about the middle of next week.

JAP ATE FLESH OF VICTIMS

NAGASAKI, JAPAN, July 18.—The wierdest murder mystery in the history of Japan has been solved with the confession of Pokichi Hori, a coal miner, who declares he is the man who killed six women in his community during the last several years. Each of the victims when found had been mutilated and a quantity of flesh taken from the right limb. Hori claims to have eaten this flesh. He is about sixty years of age.

DAYLIGHT SAVING AGAIN ON
BILL

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Repeal of the daylight saving law is again attached to the Agricultural appropriation bill as a rider by the House Agricultural committee. This action is being taken despite the fact that President Wilson vetoed the former bill.

"Horrors! Curwensville having snake fights. One of the outgrowths of prohibition no doubt.

Have you signed the Third street improvement petition? Now is our chance to get out of the mud. It should be signed by every citizen.

We have a little bit better record than DuBois on the drunkenness problem. Thus far no arrests for drunkenness have been made by the local police force.

Those who have an opportunity to gather or have huckleberries gathered should do so this season. Raspberries are scarce and the red sour cherry crop is nothing. Huckleberries and blackberries will be the salvation of the youngsters who must have jam and jelly this winter.

Many of us do not agree with the idealistic theories expounded on the Chautauqua platform but there is no denying the fact that on the whole the Chautauqua reflects a wholesome atmosphere on any community. The entertainment it provides is better than any amusement attraction ever coming to our city and the price is considerably lower. Twelve entertainments for two dollars. Many of us spent that much on one trip to a carnival. Take a little bit of that "bar money" men and invest it for your family. The Chautauqua will be a factor in making your boy and girl a bigger and better man and woman.

WHY OPPOSE THE LEAGUE?

There are very few people who oppose the proposed league of nations on general principles. There are fewer people who oppose the idealistic motives which prompted the incorporation of the league tenets. The main opposition to the league grows out of our mistrust of other nations. It is hard for some people to conceive the possibility of war within the league or of war by certain members or one member of the league against the other members of the league for the reason that the majority of the league members have been more or less in the limelight and public view and many large nations on the face of this old world have been lost sight of. Norway, Sweden, Russia, Denmark, the Netherlands and Spain are not included in the league plan to say nothing of Germany, Austria-Hungary and disgruntled China. There is no doubt in our mind but that the league is a step in the right direction, on the other hand it is such a momentous affair that it calls for the most searching study, the most keen criticism and a careful diagnosis. Our senators have a perfect right to pick the plan to pieces if they find a loose joint because if adopted before being found strong enough to stem the tide of international conflict it will most certainly land all the signatories on the shoals of warfare, the United States with the rest of them. Let them turn on the light on all the bickerings of diplomats. Let them get all the details and find out what our place will be under the sun under all the circumstances that might arise. That is what we have senators for; not simply to act as figureheads to ratify every act of a president. If the criticism of the senators is only idle oratory the American people are intelligent enough to see it. This is the moment when the United States is to decide whether she will resume her position as an independent nation minding her own business or whether she will join the European nations in a covenant which will make her a member of an international police force and embroil her, to a more or less extent, in every impending conflict throughout the world. It is a momentous question and regardless of the outcome of the squabble in the senate the time will come when we will be thankful that we had senators instead of dummy directors.

One of the things about the effectiveness of the league which puzzles us is the supplemental treaty of England and the United States to protect France. The making of this supplemental treaty is surely an acknowledgement of the ineffectiveness of the league itself.

Who Made Them?

Most American fortunes have been made by those who possess them.

They earned money, but saving part was what counted most.

Few save fortunes, but many save for fortunes.

A savings account has meant a fortune to many a man, because he had the money at the right moment. The Clearfield Trust Co. invites your account.

SEA CONTROL.

The ambition to control the sea and the desire to have access to the sea have been fruitful causes of war. When Germany planned this war, she did not expect at one stroke to gain mastery of the seas, but she did intend to secure a control of Belgium, and possibly French, coast line from which she was not to be wrested. Austria-Hungary's oppressive attitude toward Serbia was tied up with her ambition to control the Adriatic. The empire of the Hapsburgs has been displaced in that region by the new Jugo-Slav state, and here enter the conflicting claims of the Jugo-Slavs and the Italians over the Adriatic littoral which affords one of the most difficult situations the peace conference will have to adjust. It is the old contest over seaports and sea control, says Leslie's Weekly. Russia has for centuries been handicapped by Turkey's possession of Constantinople, and though revolutionary Russia has never seemed to appreciate the importance of free exit to the Mediterranean, the naming of Constantinople as an international port by the peace conference will have great influence upon Russia's future development.

A German writer bewails the fact that Germany is helplessly delivered to France's lust for revenge. The German point of view is utterly incomprehensible to other minds. It ignores entirely the fact that this war was forced on France, that it was a war caused by the lust for conquest, and that it was waged on helpless nationalities with a brutality unparalleled in history. It looks on well merited punishment as revenge and acts and talks as though entitled to sympathy, consideration and leniency, says Baltimore American. If this is really the thought of the nation it is hard to see how it ever can be admitted on equal terms again to the society of nations.

Probably one result of the spread of democracy in Europe will be the throwing open of immense landed estates of private noble families to general cultivation. The withholding of acres of land for purposes of private hunting grounds for a few privileged ones, while herds of human beings are congested in city slums, with scarcely breathing space, will be among the anomalies of the future, in fact, the whole system of a small privileged class will topple in the new upheaval.

The British sending food to Vienna by the carload is such an extreme opposite to the idea of winning enemies by friendliness, that while the Viennese will eagerly receive it, the constitution of the Teutonic mind makes it altogether possible that the gift will excite more contempt than gratitude for the victors, for the short-sighted policy of thus strengthening an enemy race.

Incentive genius is at work on a system of radio communication which will carry the human voice a distance of 12,000 miles. It is not stated whether this is expected to simplify or still further complicate the multitudinous responsibilities of the post office department.

A Frenchman, noting that two months before the armistice Foch said the war was lost without more gasoline, calls petroleum "the life blood of victory." It was. And four-fifths of it came from the United States in a continuous and ever-swelling stream.

A minister says the American girls must learn to listen as well as the French girls do if they wish to hold the attention of the home-coming soldiers. Reckon the right soldier with the right thing to say can get a listener any time he's ready.

There are 28,000,000,000 tons of coal still to be mined, according to the calculations of engineers. Here's hoping then that we'll never live to see the time when we shall have to try to burn slate and coal dust again.

Our observation is that the average man stands out for a square deal for everybody, with four shades the best of it for himself. But there are difficulties in executing that program.

The hobble skirt is being blamed for slowing up trains. There, now, we've been wondering for several months what was the matter with those trains!

It is said that the price of golf balls may go up to $1.25, in which event we'll take all the time we want before we'll concede that we've lost ours.

Luther Burbank has developed a new kind of a nut, in spite of the overproduction of squirrel food in all parts of our fair land.

It isn't fashionable to refer to them as "civilian clothes." To be quite correct, you must say he is "in mufti."

Whereas we used to tell it to the marines we now tell it about them. And it takes some telling!

Dress Warm And Keep Feet Dry

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat, less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy possesses a collection of over twenty thousand coins, which is said to be the finest in the world.

BRITISH SPORTS HUNT MAN TO WHIP DEMPSEY

LONDON, July 18—Fight promoters and ring followers on this side of the big pond would like to see Jack Dempsey, the new American heavyweight champion, come over and display his wares in one of the London arenas. Since the close of the war the boxing game has flourished in the metropolis to an extent unparalleled in many years. With the return to peace the London public has been eager for every form of recreation, boxing included. Weekly shows are being given by half a dozen prominent boxing clubs and many clubs of lesser note. All are well patronized, which means that promoters, fighters, and all others active in the game are making money.

The fight fan here believes that England has a better crop of heavyweights at the present time than has America, Dempsey excluded. Should the new American champion encounter difficulty in finding a suitable opponent when he gets ready to re-enter the ring he undoubtedly will be invited to come over to this side and face one of the English heavyweights. There is little reason to doubt that one of the London clubs would be willing to make terms that would prove an inducement to Dempsey to make the trip.

Recently several heavyweight fighters have come to the front in England that give promise of proving superior to the best of the heavies that have been seen here in recent years. One of these is Joe Beckett, the Southampton lad, who has been moving down all comers the past year. One of Beckett's most recent victims was Bombardier Wells, who for some years has held the foremost place among the British heavyweight fighters. Although he is getting along in years, Wells is still regarded as far from being "all in." This was proven by his defeat of such a seasoned fighter as Eddie McGoorty. But with all the advantage that comes of long experience in the game the Bombardier was no match for Beckett, a comparative novice as a fighter. From the first tap of the gong the Southampton boy showed himself the master of his opponent and in the fifth round he put Wells down for the count. Beckett's followers believe that with proper handling and a little more experience he would prove a worthy opponent for Dempsey.

Another of the new British heavyweights who has been giving a good account of himself in all his recent performances is Frank Goddard a former guardsman who won quite a reputation as a pugilist while still in the army. Goddard is a mountain of a man and is still in his early twenties. Some of the shrewdest critics in London predict a brilliant future for him. A match between Goddard and Beckett is a probability of the near future.

A match between Dempsey and Georges Carpentier would prove a strong drawing-card here. Carpentier has already entered into a contract whereby he has agreed to give his first fight in London when he re-enters the ring after his long military service. It is understood that the French champion is anxious to get back into the game. When the war broke out he was a millionaire in France, but the greater part of his wealth was invested in the coal mines in the vicinity of his home at Lens, so when he comes back to the ring he will be as a man after making another fortune. Carpentier will re-enter the game under the direction of his old manager Deschamps. The latter, by the way, has become very rich. Rejected for the French army, he took over a modest little factory at La Guersche, and as a manufacturer of boxes in which to pack Camembert cheeses, he has made quite a pile of money. Today he is probably the wealthiest man who ever managed a boxer.

Taking Away Sin

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D.D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.—John 1:29.

It would seem that John the Baptist, who was the last and greatest of the prophets, should announce his great successor as the one fulfilling the prophecies reaching back to the garden of Eden; as the Son of David, the King of the Jews; as the great Prophet for whose coming the Jews had been looking for centuries; as the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. But he did not do so. He simply said, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

In the field of John's vision there was a black cloud of sin, out of which wrath was falling on men the world over. He saw men enslaved by sin. He saw that they were to die eternally on account of sin, and in Jesus he saw the world's Savior.

It seems strange that the greatest curse on man should be given a name containing only three letters; yet the greatest idea that man can entertain, as a name, contains only three letters—God. It may be fanciful, but there is possibly a suggestion that these two words, so short, should always be considered together. No God, no sin. "Sin is the transgression of the law." If there were no God to promulgate law there could be no sin. Sin was the ugly thing that separated man from God, and that now threatens to make that separation eternal, and none but God himself could take it away.

With very many sin is simply the transgression of the law of God that affects oneself or society; it is only vice or crime. It is altogether proper to speak of sinning against one's fellow men and against himself. A certain man, whose name is familiar because notorious within the last four years, sinned greatly against society at large, against the whole human race. If a man thinks he has preserved a conscience void of offense toward his fellow men he thinks that he is meeting all God's requirements. Man frequently, speaks of transgression of the law as directly affecting himself and others, but often that man is altogether indifferent to the practical fact that there is a consideration far above this of what sin does, and that consideration is that sin affects God.

There is nothing needed now more than a sense of God. There are many who are utterly godless and they are not called atheists, but they are atheists practically. As far as interest in God is concerned God might as well not be. There are, however, some evidences that this sense of God is being realized as never before. A soldier in France wrote, "All idols are in the rear; everyone here at the front believes in God and the future."

In the Bible we have two very clear illustrations of sensitiveness to sin as offense against God. When Joseph was tempted by the wife of Potiphar he was saved by the thought, "How can I do this thing and sin against God?" Here was utter indifference to anything but the thought of sinning against God. The other case is that of David who prayed, "Against thee, thee only, have I sinned and done this evil in thy sight." Again, utter indifference to the consequences of his sin as touching himself and others. The same thought is reflected in the prodigal's words when he returned to his father. This recognition and confession of offense against God is the door through which the true penitent comes into a place of deliverance. It is here that he secures spiritual freedom, and that spiritual freedom is only realized when the guilt of sin is taken away.

The taking away of sin is real. The strong shoulders of the Son of God bear it away, as the scapegoat of old bore away the sins of Israel into the wilderness.

If Jesus Christ is able to carry away the sin of the world it is quite reasonable to say that he can take away the sin of any man.

There are some who fear that they may have sinned so grievously that their sin can never be taken away, but if Jesus Christ can take away the sin of the world, which certainly means all sin, the sin of the troubled sinner can also be taken away.

I lay my sins on Jesus,
The spotless Lamb of God.
He bears them all and frees us
From the accursed load.

RUSSIAN JEWS ARE AGAINST ALL BOLSHEVIK RULE

By FRANK J. TAYLOR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 18.—Bolshevism is not a revolution by the Russian Jews for the Russian Jews, as is popularly believed, according to the bolsheviks. Investigating the way the Jews line up with regard to bolshevism leads to the conclusion that three-fourths of the Jews are against bolshevism.

This stand on the part of the majority of Jews is probably due to the fact that the Jews have been the heaviest losers among the little bourgeoisie of Russia. This is especially true of small cities. In the provincial districts most of the Jews were buyers and sellers and had gathered together small fortunes, usually from five to twenty-five thousand rubles. Today that sum is nothing, but in the old days it represented quite an amount, comparatively speaking, enough to enable operation of a small business.

Generally the Jewish merchant lost this fortune entirely, through confiscations of stocks in stores, or of warehouses of wool and cotton and grains. It was the Jew who lost heaviest because he had most. While fortunes of merchants were confiscated, either without payment or at low prices set by the state, the peasant was allowed to sell at market prices. Confiscation was not attempted with the peasant, who was regarded as a producer.

A typical case was called to the attention of the correspondent while he was interviewing the chief of the economic soviet in Moscow. Two Jews from the provinces reached Moscow and immediately put their case before the soviet for decision. They had been sent by the merchants of their village, almost all Jews, all of whom were required to give up wool and other goods they had invested in at a price set by the government. The peasants, on the other hand, were allowed to sell at a competitive price.

What the result of the protest was, the correspondent could not learn, since it had to be passed along to several soviets, and numerous yards of red tape had to be unrolled before the matter could be solved. Probably the goods were confiscated before the decision could be altered.

Similarly, in all towns the Jews have run the small shops which have been closed by the bolsheviks. The Jews were the ones who lost their means of support, and had to go to work at new places. The Jewish rabbi here has been against bolshevism from the beginning and has exercised a great influence over their people.

On the other hand, it is true that a large percentage of Jewish intellectuals, mostly men who have been the victims of the old government, have become leaders in the bolshevik movement.

This has been explained by the fact that under the old regime Jews were prevented from entering certain other lines of activity by laws which discriminated against the Hebrews. The Jews naturally took to intellectual pursuits and became writers, lawyers and thinkers. They welcomed any system which would guarantee them an equal opportunity. These intellectuals quickly adjusted themselves to the bolshevik ideas, and owing to their keenness and energy, many came out on top in the new government.

That the majority of bolsheviks are Jews is not true, it is evident. Probably they have a larger percentage of representation in governmental positions than the Gentiles, but every effort is made by the soviet government to prevent the issue from arising.

The bolsheviks are trying to prevent discrimination from being made against the Jews, and have succeeded remarkably well. The principal Jewish problem seems to be along the borders, where the armies are fighting. There the reported "pogroms" are causing bitter feeling. According to the bolsheviks, the "pogroms" resulting in the massacre of entire villages, are confined to the anti-bolshevik side of the line. The worst Jewish "pogroms" have been in the south, mostly in the Ukraine. Many villages

Greatest Coal Shortage In History On Way, Says Govt.; Public Warned to Buy Coal

The United States Geological Survey has made public at Washington a report covering the first six months' operation of the bituminous coal mines of the United States, which shows that during the first half of the year the production of bituminous coal was more than 70,000,000 tons below the amount produced during the first six months of 1918.

If the present rate of production is not materially increased during the latter half of the year bituminous coal production for 1919 will fall 100,000,000 tons below the requirements of the country as estimated by the Survey in a recent report to Fuel Administrator Garfield.

Such a decrease, in the opinion of officials of the Survey and Fuel Administration, could mean but one thing—the greatest coal shortage in the history of the country.

The decreased production is almost wholly due, the analysis of the Survey shows, to the failure of consumers to buy their coal early in the year. The only way in which production can be thoroughly stimulated throughout the industry is for consumers to place at once orders for their fall and winter coal requirements. Mines cannot achieve their maximum efficiency unless there are orders on hand for their product. In making public its report the Survey says:

"The best time in the year for laying in stocks of coal for next winter is rapidly passing, with no evidence of general buying for this purpose. The rate of production has not varied greatly since the middle of May, and averaging about 30 per cent below last year, is apparently just sufficient to meet current consumption."

To meet the full requirements of the country, as estimated by the

Survey, production must be increased from an average of 8,125,000 tons per week during the first six months of 1919 to an average of 10,000,000 tons per week during the last six months of 1919. This means an increase of more than 30 per cent. A probable shortage of cars and a labor shortage promise to become limiting factors in coal production within a short time. The labor shortage is already felt in certain sections and a car shortage also is reported in certain fields in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia.

Bituminous coal operators throughout the country unite with the Geological Survey in predicting a widespread general coal shortage next fall and winter, unless consumers immediately place orders for their requirements and thus enable the mines to operate at a rate more nearly approaching full time output.

GEORGE AND JOHN ENJOY TEA TOGETHER

LONDON, July 16.—John Pershing, son of a Missouri railway foreman and a former country school master, had tea this afternoon in the garden of Buckingham palace with his majesty, the king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the sea and Emperor of India.

George said to John: "Nice afternoon, General."

John answered: "It is, your Majesty."

George: "Glad to see you back in London for the peace celebration Saturday, General."

John: "I am glad to be here, your majesty."

George: "You had a nice day in Paris at the fete, General?"

John: "Very nice day, your majesty."

George: "Let's have tea, General."

John: "With pleasure, your Majesty."

That's all they talked about—the weather and tea.

OTTO GOT THE CAT

An Ogden avenue woman possesses a half grown cat which is so afraid of a dog that every time one appears in the neighborhood the cat shins up a telephone pole in front of the house to a place of safety at the extreme top of the thirty foot pole.

The funny thing about the whole proceeding is that once the cat gets up the pole he can't get down again. In fact he simply refuses to even attempt to negotiate the descent of that pole and there he sits hour after hour and meows! meows! meows! Did you ever have a cat in a similar position sit right there next door to your bedroom and meow minute in and minute out for four long days or 96 hours or 5760 minutes? Did ya? Huh? Well, ask Johnny Martin about it and how it sounds, especially now that a man can't be driven to drink even tho he would.

A couple of weeks ago a mangy cur named Tommy to the top of the pole and he stayed there three days until Pete Barrett was induced to go up and do the rescue act. On Monday last the cat beat the dog to the pole by the mere skin of his teeth and when the frightened Tommy reached the top he sat right down and refused even to look toward the ground where he expected his deadly enemy to be located. He promptly set up his S. O. S. appeal and continued same without let up or intermission all day and night Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and till 11:30 o'clock Thursday. Many councils of war were held by the people of the community and the cat pitted at a distance but still he sat there and made the night and day hideous by his plaintive caterwauls. Then to add to the ill and the annoyance a boy of young lady friends of Tommy would be attracted to the foot of the pole every evening as soon as dusk fell and they would join their lamentations with his. Despite this nightly communion and all the seductive verbal wiles of the young lady cats Tommy stuck fast and only when a posse comitatus, headed by Martin, got ready to shoot Tommy off the pole to save his life did the owner get busy. Then she called the police. Chief Eadie armed himself with Otto, King of Porch Climbers, and went up—that is Otto went up the pole and rescued the cat and the whole neighborhood is rejoicing and hoping the dog wins the next race for the pole.

ARRESTED WIFE DESERTER

The local police picked up Robert L. Herritt, a New York Central yard brakeman, yesterday on a warrant from the office of Alderman J. P. Anthony, of Lock Haven. Her it deserted his wife and two small children at Lock Haven last May and as the family is destitute the arrest followed information made by the suffering wife.

Herritt was placed in the lock-up and a Lock Haven constable came to town at noon and took him back with him on the afternoon New York Central train.

The queen bee will lay from two to three thousand eggs daily in the season. She is the mother of all the other inmates in the hive, and can lay eggs to produce either drones or workers—as the fancy takes her. The queen bee always heads the bees when they issue to swarm.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

The two large buildings which are to be used for sanitary closets, shower baths and clothes lockers by the men employed at the Pennsylvania Hide and Leather company's plant here, are now under way and it will not be many weeks ere men will be at liberty to the free use of all these conveniences. Superintendent John Blake, who is always on the lookout for improvements that will benefit the large number of men who are employed under him, has been figuring for several years on making these improvements, and it has been only of a recent date that he was permitted to work out his plan. The employees certainly appreciate Mr. Blake's efforts to make the work more pleasant and especially to give each man a chance to take a refreshing shower bath after his day's work is completed. When the buildings are completed and equipped they will be up to date in every respect, and it will be about the only tannery of the kind in the state which has the conveniences that the employees of the Pennsylvania Hide and Leather company will enjoy.

The snake fight advertised to take place at the ball ground yesterday evening proved a great disappointment to those who gathered at the appointed place and who expected to witness an exciting combat. Rattler Pete and Black Jack were to be the competitors for the championship of Clearfield county. The fight to be has been the theme of conversation among the sporting element for several days past, and in the betting clique odds were offered that Black Jack would be an easy winner over his adversary Rattler Pete. The snakes were conveyed to the battle ground on time, 7:30 o'clock, Philadelphia time, and turned loose in a wire netting square. The spectators expected to see a battle royal start right off as soon as the snakes caught sight of each other. Great was their chagrin and disgust when they saw that neither the rattler nor black snake paid the least attention to the proximity of each other, but busied themselves in trying to find some loophole by which they might escape from confinement and each his life to its native heath, where, should they happen to cross each other's path there would be a battle worth anyone's while to witness. In fact the affair was a disappointment all the way around, to the spectators because the snakes refused to contest for supremacy and to the snakes because they were refused their freedom. The bills stated that an admission fee would be charged, and the money gathered in would be donated to the ball club. It is a foregone conclusion that a deadly feud exists between the rattler snake and the black but in yesterday's event each snake refused to take up the cudgel and go to it.

Twelve aliens made applications for citizenship papers at the Prothonotary's office yesterday.

County Treasurer A. L. Kline has notified all delinquent mercantile taxpayers that July 20th is the last day for paying mercantile taxes at the Treasurer's office. After that date all unpaid taxes will be left with a Justice of the Peace for collection, as the law provides.

A petition was filed in the Prothonotary's office yesterday by Supervisor Ruffner, of Bigler township in which the citizens of that township petition for county aid to construct a bridge over Muddy Run, near Madera, on the old Philipsburg pike. The petition alleges the township is too poor to erect the bridge itself.

A. Z. Wolf, Sr., and family returned home yesterday evening from a week's stay at Sulphur Springs in Bedford county.

H. B. Thompson, who had been confined to his home for the past three weeks, is now able to be up and about the house again.

Chase & Chase, representing the Chase, Gallaher & Anderson Coal Company filed a writ of replevin with the Prothonotary in which they seek to recover a team of horses, wagon and harness now in the possession of Luther Passmore of Lawrence township, and which the company alleges is their property upon failure of Passmore to pay the purchase price agreed upon for same.

SUMMER FURS FALL

Oh! all the girls wear 'em
Just like in the harem,
Enhancing their beauty full score.

They're all net or maline
Thru which much can be seen
Sure, its veils that I mean—
Nothing more.

BY MARGARET RHOE
(Written for The United Press)

NEW YORK, July 18.—When lovely Queen Louise of Prussia always swathed her neck and throat in airy lengths of tulle, gossamer got busy. They said the reason for such an affectation was either a scar or a goitre. If we started hunting reasons for all the wild fashions of the present mode, goitres would only cover one end of the situation. At least they can't be the reason why the summer girls are all shedding their summer furs to un-velate Queen Louise's net neck. wathes. Possibly it's because they find the frothy scarves of maline and silk net much more cooling to the bare skin than mole and fox skin. Probably it's because they find them so becoming.

In white, navy, black and brown maline or silk net these newest neck-carves are finishing neck and neck as a winning hot weather fashion. Any color, however, is permissible and some of the vivid shades of green, cerise, purple and yellow add just the striking right color note to an all white costume. Often the maline is fashioned into a veritable scarf with the ends gathered together with a tassel as a finish, but more chic are the lengths in their virgin state, as 'twere, just as they are snipped off the bolt.

They are really the same maline lengths to which we have gone for many a season past to drape round our decollete shoulders on festive evenings. Now we have merely lifted them from bare shoulders and a ball room setting to bare throats and an outdoor environment. Now we wear them steadily around the fashionable cloak, and our necks from A. M. until P. M. and adapt them as gracefully to the marts of trade as to the mazes of Terpsichore. Cunning little close fitting draped turbans of the maline have been bobbing about on pretty heads for many weeks, but now as an added attraction they have sprouted lengths of the maline that twist and fluff about the throat and lower face in a seductive haremlike manner. Thus the scarf attached to the hat and the summer girl is apparently much attached to both.

Departing a bit from the all maline effect, a turban of gold tissue with a tobacco-brown maline scarf is a rich and harmonious combination, though the brown scarf fastened to a tu ban of the same toned maline makes a brown study that most anyone would delight to be in.

Getting away from these hybrid veil and scarf affairs and down to plain veils, though the term plain is no word for them, flowing lace veils are having a renewed vogue this summer. In white embroidered net or black Chantilly they make equally effective additions to the broadbrimmed flower-laden picture hats, and to the quaint coquettish mid-Victorian pokes.

The figured mesh veil with a deep plain chiffon border is very smart for street wear as well as for motoring. Hexagon, filet and plain oval mesh veils with elaborate lace, embroidered, fringed and ribbon edged borders drip from every brim and an elaborate decoative veil of white gleaming with tiny globules of crystal beads and fringed with the same glittering drops is indeed a veritable "veil of tears."

LETTER FROM OSCAR BARRETT

We received a letter from our friend Corporal Oscar Barrett the first of the week written on July 1st at Monton, France in which the Corporal appears to be somewhat peeved because he had been ordered to stand for nothing on a particular Sunday and had passed his bit, had everything ready and was writing a farewell letter on Friday evening when notified that the plan had been changed and his outfit was scheduled to remain in France a while longer. He says he thinks he will be home Christmas but won't bet on it.

He says Blair McCracken is at Camp Guthrie, just across the road from him. He says Mac is some lad and has a prize pup he is bringing home. He is en route for the States now.

Barrett and Guy Evans visited Guy Paice together and report some "time." He says the boys over there are strong on clothes, some of them having as high as eight suits of underwear. He was no hog and only has four or d shirts, four pairs of shoes, three caps, one hat, sixteen pairs of socks and two and one-half suits of clothes, and feels he can't stand it until he gets home. He wrote his letter at the Jewish Welfare Board's building and says his Hebrew friends have something on both the Red Cross and K. of C. as at the latter places the stuff is laid out for you to go and get, but at the Welfare house they carry cocoa and cakes to each service man while he is writing his letters.

He wants to know if there were any big trout landed and whether the "camel season" has opened around Clearfield.

3,500 ALIENS DEPART FOR HOME IN ONE DAY

NEW YORK, July 16.—It began to look here yesterday as though the exodus of 4,000,000 aliens from the United States as soon as emigration restrictions were removed, might come true. Thirty-five hundred aliens within an estimated average of $2,500 savings each sailed from here yesterday for their native lands—most of them never to return.

Many of those who went yesterday were Italians. All three of the steamships that took them—the Red Italia, the Caserta and the Giuseppe Verdi—sailed for southern European ports.

All Monday night a line four deep hemmed around the Customs House from Bridge street to Broadway. Each was examined to see that he had paid his income tax. Most of them were shipyard workers and munitions men who made "big money" during the war.

Comb Sage Tea Into Gray Hair

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready to use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle at little cost, at drug stores, known as Wyrth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This avoids a lot of mess.

While gray hair is not simply a matter of a few strands, but a condition of the hair, Wyrth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a natural, so even. You just comb it through your hair with a small stick and at once your hair is gray hair has disappeared. After another application of the Compound becomes beautiful and soft and luxuriant. The compound is a years' young.

WILSON MAKING LITTLE IMPRESSION
ON SENATORS OPPOSING THE LEAGUESOME RESENTMENT IS SHOWN OVER HIS
FAILURE TO ATTEMPT TO CRACK
THE HARD NUTS FIRST

MOSTLY UNCHANGED IN MIND

WASHINGTON, July 18.—President Wilson continued his attack on the opponents of the League of Nations today when he summoned four more senators to the White House to discuss with them the desirability of the league. The senators summoned today were Kellogg, of Minnesota; Kenyon, of Iowa; Capper, of Kansas, and McNary, of Oregon. Kellogg is known to be in favor of the principles of such a league. Kenyon is in the doubtful class, McNary is desirous of some such combination of a league while Capper is in favor of the league with reservation. All of the senators summoned are open to conviction.

The President will use the same line of argument he used yesterday when he talked to four senators. It is said that he will not request them to change their mind or make any plea that they support his acts at Paris other than to explain to them why certain clauses were inserted in the covenant and give inside information as to the workings of the peace conference. Some resentment was felt in Washington over the president inviting first those who were known to be open to conviction instead of trying to break down the objections loudly voiced by out and out league opponents.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Wilson inaugurated his series of conferences with Republican senators by which he hopes to gain supporters of the League of Nations by, summoning Senators Porter J. McCumber, of North Dakota, Knute Nelson, of Minnesota and LeRoy Colt, of Rhode Island.

After leaving the White House, the three senators declared that their opinions were not changed by their talk with the President. This is what the senators had to say:

Senator McCumber: "My conversation with the President did not change my opinion at all. I still believe reservations are necessary."

Senator Nelson: "We had a very friendly talk, but it gave me no new light on the subject. I believe reservations should be made."

Senator Colt: "I am in favor of clear and distinct safeguards on the Monroe Doctrine and on domestic questions such as that of immigration, as well as some action in respect to Article 10."

The President in his talk dwelt with great emphasis upon the difficulties which attended the settlement at the conference. He explained that many of the details were the result of compromise and unless there had been yielding upon all sides the final negotiations of the treaty would have been impossible.

The President also touched upon the Chautauque decision, which has aroused so much bitterness in the Senate and expressed a desire to make a full explanation of the circumstances under which the settlement was made. It is understood this explanation will be made in the form of a formal communication which the President will send to the Senate early next week.

The fact was impressed upon the senators by the President that there was no desire upon his part to present the Chautauque matter in any other light than as a compromise which was necessary for the successful termination of the treaty negotiations. To Senator Colt in particular the President explained that there are some details of the Shantung case that cannot be stated; the explanation it was stated "will be decidedly complex."

As a matter of reservation on the treaty, the President made clear to the senators that his chief objection to this course was that the adoption of reservations by the Senate might open up the door to all sorts of reservations by other powers, tending to upset the whole treaty. It was stated by one of the senators that the President agreed with the idea that certain reservations would be desirable if they could be made without prejudicing the execution of the treaty as it now stands.

Senator McCumber said that the President gave him a considerable amount on confidential explanation. The President's talk, he said, tended to develop the method by which conclusions on certain of the provisions in the treaty were reached.

LOYAL LEGION
ADOPTS OFFICIAL
BUTTON EMBLEM

A button adopted by the National Executive committee of the American Legion as the official emblem of the national organization of four million American veterans of the Great War will be distributed in a few days to members of the Legion through state branches and local Posts throughout the country. An enlarged design of the button, unless changed by the National Convention at Minneapolis in November, will also be used as the basis for the official seal of the Legion.

The button is three quarters of an inch in diameter. It consists of a central small replica of the regulation bronze five pointed star discharge button, surrounded by a narrow circular band of blue enamel, containing the words "American Legion" in gold letters. The button has a fluted gold edge. The central replica of the discharge button will be instead of bronze for members of the Legion who were wounded in the service.

The necessary steps will be taken by the Legislative committee of the American Legion, headed by former Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee and former Congressman Thomas W. Miller, of Delaware, to have the emblem copyrighted and its use fully protected.

AND THE VILLAIN STILL
ELUDES 'EM

Well, there is a general gum shoe police alarm out for the son of a gun who nailed those Chautauque signs on some two hundred telephone poles about town in direct violation of the Borough ordinances.

Ignorance of the law excuses no man and as it will be impossible for the offender to plead intoxication now, he will have to pay the penalty when found. The Chautauque begins July 29th this year and lasts a week, but the sign tacker will not be at liberty to enjoy this year's exceptionally high class program if he falls into the Mayor's eager clutches. The signs will remain up and a fine of $10 for each be assessed against guarantors of the Chautauque which serves to suggest that, to paraphrase an old time homily, uneasy lies the head that tops a guarantor's frame.

BULGARIAN REPARATION

PARIS, July 18.—The Allied reparation bill to be presented to Bulgaria will be from one to two billion francs. The peace treaty for Bulgaria was merely completed today.

BUILDING TRADES STRIKE AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, ILL., July 18.—One hundred thousand workers in the building and street construction trades were locked out by employers this morning when they failed to report for work after the employers' organization had made a counter offer of higher wages. The men presented a demand recently for a twenty cent per hour increase in wages. The employers granted an increase of twelve cents per hour and notified the employees to return. When they failed to return this morning notices of a lockout were posted. The lockout ties up building and construction projects approximating fifty million dollars. Six hundred thousand dollars in daily wages will be lost to the men. Secretary of the A. F. of L. announced that the wants of the locked-out men would be taken care of by other trade unions and by an appeal to the general public.

The last big lockout in Chicago occurred in 1899 when thirty thousand men were idle for a period of fifteen months. Should this lockout be in force for only a short time at least fifty thousand additional men will be thrown idle in lath mills, lumber yards, cement works and other industries closely allied to the building trades.

STATE GAME PROTECTOR HERE

Traveling State Game Protector Kinter B. Rodgers, of Johnston, one of the oldest in point of service and most efficient attaches of the Pennsylvania State Game Commission, was a Clearfield visitor yesterday and today. Mr. Rodgers knows his business from "soup to nuts" and when he once gets on the trail of a game or fish violator he never lets up until the culprit is landed, not over around his home territory game law violators are becoming few and far between. In fact when a "poacher" learns that Rodgers is after him, that is enough; he simply emulates Davy Crockett's coon and comes down at once.

Some Clearfield county tin horn sports may have reason to remember Mr. Rodgers' visit.

WEST SIDE POKER JOINT PULLED

The police pulled a "poker joint" in the Third Ward about 10:15 Wednesday night. The trap was sprung a little too early and as a result the proprietor and but one customer were toiling when the officers entered. The gamblers were before Mayor Chase last evening and the fellow who ran the house got off with a $15.00 fine, while the guest paid just half as much.

LIQUOR INTERESTS
WILL DEFY VIEW
OF CRAWFORD

PITTSBURGH, July 17, 1919.—The Pittsburgh Brewing Company and the liquor interests willing to follow its lead will defy United States Attorney R. L. Crawford in the matter of beer of less than half of 1 per cent. alcoholic content and a renewal of the fight in which it was thought the liquor men had surrendered will take place probably today or tomorrow.

The brewing company officials declared their intention yesterday and their declaration was speedily followed by an announcement from the district attorney that he will proceed with his program of making information. During the day C. A. Fagan, attorney for the brewing company, announced that he had received information from Washington showing the existence of a different kind of law than that proclaimed by the district attorney. To this Mr. Crawford declined to make any reply, but it is believed that his intention remains unshaken and that a very brief time will see new and vigorous developments.

New Beer Poor Seller

A new element in the situation, however, has been furnished by the fact that the saloons and the low alcoholic content beer unsalable. Many of them remained closed yesterday or opened only to close again very speedily, and while much of this was due to the fear of prosecution, there were not a few who declared that it was no use to fight for less than half per cent beer because the drinkers would not drink it anyhow.

The brewing companies, however, will continue to produce it and offer it to the saloon men with the expectation that the aversion to it will be overcome.

THIRD WARD HOSE CO.
FESTIVAL

The festival and victory flag raising of the Third Ward Hose company will be held on the lawn at the hose house Monday evening, July 28th. An entertaining program is being prepared for the occasion and everybody is invited to participate.

The Third Ward boys have reached the very bottom of their "strong box" and as even such generous institutions as volunteer fire companies need a dollar or two occasionally for incidental expenses they hope to realize some change at their festival which will be incidental to the flag raising and speaking program.

Those Third Ward lads take a delight in coming to your aid when their services are needed and they will appreciate a little reciprocity on your part on the evening of the 28th, and incidentally give you your money's worth in the way of refreshments and entertainment.

OPENING OF NEW
"HOTEL JORDAN"
HUGE SUCCESS

A total of 257 guests accepted Proprietor Ralph Jordan's invitation to take dinner with him at the opening of his main dining rooms at the newly remodeled and rebuilt Wiltner Inn hotel or Jordan Cafe last evening.

Mr. Jordan, who has so successfully managed the restaurant at the Wiltner Inn property for so many years, succeeded in getting control of the entire Wiltner Inn property and at an expense exceeding two thousand dollars has converted the hotel property into one of the newest, most modern and best equipped European hotels to be found anywhere in this section of the State.

The hotel adjoins the old original restaurant, Clearfield's most popular eating house, which will also be maintained as of yore. The room next to the restaurant has been fitted up as a dining room and in addition is equipped with a handsome soda fountain. This dining room was opened about the first of the month.

The main and private dining rooms were not ready for opening until last evening because of the failure to receive some of the equipment for same. The main dining room occupies the former office of the old Wiltner Inn and a private dining room joins it in the rear.

The dining rooms are elegantly furnished, the furniture being the same style throughout. Everything is of the best and spick and span new.

The walls and interior generally are handsomely decorated while a system of wall and individual table lighting adds to the beauty of the rooms.

The dining rooms will seat 97 comfortably and as the Jordan Cafe fills a long-felt want in Clearfield will no doubt be generally patronized.

Proprietor Jordan served a special chicken dinner for the opening last evening and excellent viands and perfect service more than satisfied and pleased the large number of guests and "Jordan's" specially invited friends. Knight's Saxophone Orchestra furnished delightful music during the dinner hours, their soloists obliging with a number of fine songs.

"The Jordan" will have 25 rooms for guests and these are all newly fitted up in the same style and high-class plan that marks the place throughout. These rooms have been filled every night since opening and "The Jordan" has already earned an enviable reputation with the traveling public.

Proprietor Jordan is to be congratulated upon his new venture and his host of friends throughout this section of the state will wish him unbounded success.

FIFTY-EIGHTH WEDDING
ANNIVERSARY

On Saturday, July 19, 1919, Mrs. Eljah Blankley, of Centre, Decatur township, Clearfield, one of the best known and most estimable women of this locality, will celebrate her eightieth birthday anniversary, and incidentally the fifty-eighth anniversary of her wedding. She was born in Derbyshire, England, and since coming to America thirty-eight years ago has lived practically ever since at Centre. Of her thirteen children eight are living: Richard, of Bayonne, N. J.; Harry, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Samuel, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Geo. Thomas, of Altoona; Mrs. S. Wheatley, of Philadelphia; Mrs. G. W. Brandt, of Hollidaysburg; James, of Buffalo, and George, of Curwensville.

HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Corporal Edward Lietzinger arrived home from France last evening. Eddie was a truck driver with Colonel Fred B. Kerr's Twenty-third Engineers. He spent more than eighteen months overseas. His father motored over to Tyrone yesterday afternoon and brought the returning soldier back over the mountain a couple of hours ahead of the late train.

Sgt. Frederick, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lietzinger's other boy in the service landed at Charleston, S. C., and is expected home today or tomorrow. "Ted" was overseas with the radio signal corps.

PLAN LABOR CONFERENCE TO BE HELD ON PEACE TREATY PLANS

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Plans for the International Labor Conference to be held under the labor clauses of the peace treaty are under way. Dr. James Shottwell, American representative on the organizing committee. The four principal topics to be taken up come under the following heads:

- First—An eight hour day throughout the world.
- Second—State help for the unemployed.
- Third—Women in industry.
- Fourth—Children in industry.

Each nation is to send four delegates, two representing the government, one representing capital and one representing labor.

GOMPERS GIVES ENGLAND VIEWS ON
PROHIBITION AND IRISH QUESTION

LONDON, July 18.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, arrived at Southampton today on the Mauretania and shortly after arriving he gave an interview in which he declared regarding prohibition: "It is all rot to think you can compel a country to be dry." Speaking of Ireland, Gompers said: "I have only good wishes for England but there is a general feeling that the Irish question should be settled."

GOVERNMENT OF BELA KUN HAS BEEN
OVERTHROWN. WHITES MAY ATTACK

PARIS, July 18.—Dispatches from Vienna today state that Bela Kun, War Minister and virtual dictator of Austria Hungary has been overthrown and that General Bohm and Herr Lander have assumed control. The Bolsheviks is reported to be in danger of the White Army composed principally of peasants.

CONGRESS MAKES BIG INCREASE IN
MONEY TO EDUCATE SERVICE MEN

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Senate Appropriations Committee today voted to report favorably the Sundry Civil bill as passed by the House. This measure was vetoed by President Wilson on the first passage by both houses. It then carried an appropriation of $6,000,000 for the vocational training of soldiers and sailors of the world war. The presidential veto called for an appropriation of $12,000,000. The new measure calls for $14,000,000, or $2,000,000 more than the president recommended.

BILLS CHANGING SCHOOL CODE
APPROVED

HARRISBURG, PA., July 17.—Physical training in elementary public schools of the state is made mandatory upon the school districts thru the approval by Gov. Sprout of the Hickernell bill. The measure was one of six providing amendments to the school code that were signed by the Governor today. The others are the Armstrong bill for an increase from $1 to not more than $5 in the school tax in second, third and fourth class districts, and amending the present school laws relative to medical inspection; the Martin bill, fixing the salary of the attendance officer in first class district, at not less than $1,200 a year; the Crow bill, changing the appointment of the board of trustees of the state normal schools from the state board of education to the superintendent of public instruction; the Dewitt bill, providing that any teacher who has held a professional certificate for ten years may teach subjects embraced in the certificate without further examinations, and the Woodruff bill, providing for the granting of a provisional college certificate to a graduate in music with the degree of bachelor of music of a college or university approved by the college and university council who has pursued a classical course of studies in addition to the music course.

JOHNSON ASKS
HABEAS CORPUS
HEARING AT ONCE

Habeas Corpus proceedings were begun this morning by Attorney James A. Gleason in behalf of Walter C. Johnson, the DuBois man who was lodged in jail yesterday by Constable Leslie of Union township, charged with felonious rape.

Johnson's wife, of three months, and his attorney visited him in the jail this morning. He stoutly maintains his innocence and declares he was in the company of his wife and other people all day Sunday and at the time the alleged crime was committed he was at his home in DuBois.

The petition for a habeas corpus hearing was filed with the Prothonotary but in the absence of Judge Bell no time was fixed, but it will likely be held about the middle of next week.

JAP ATE FLESH OF VICTIMS

NAGASAKI, JAPAN, July 18.—The wildest murder mystery in the history of Japan has been solved with the confession of Pokichi Hori, a coal miner, who declares he is the man who killed six women in his community during the last several years. Each of the victims when found had been mutilated and a quantity of flesh taken from the right limb. Hori claims to have eaten this flesh. He is about sixty years of age.

DAYLIGHT SAVING AGAIN ON
BILL

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Repeal of the daylight saving law is again attached to the Agricultural appropriation bill as a rider by the House Agricultural committee. This action is being taken despite the fact that President Wilson vetoed the former bill.

"Horrors! Curwensville having snake fights. One of the outgrowths of prohibition no doubt.

Have you signed the Third street improvement petition? Now is our chance to get out of the mud. It should be signed by every citizen.

We have a little bit better record than DuBois on the drunkenness problem. Thus far no arrests for drunkenness have been made by the local police force.

Those who have an opportunity to gather or have huckleberries gathered should do so this season. Raspberries are scarce and the red sour cherry crop is nothing. Huckleberries and blackberries will be the salvation of the youngsters who must have jam and jelly this winter.

Many of us do not agree with the idealistic theories expounded on the Chautauqua platform but there is no denying the fact that on the whole the Chautauqua reflects a wholesome atmosphere on any community. The entertainment it provides is better than any amusement attraction ever coming to our city and the price is considerably lower. Twelve entertainments for two dollars. Many of us spent that much on one trip to a carnival. Take a little bit of that "bar money" men and invest it for your family. The Chautauqua will be a factor in making your boy and girl a bigger and better man and woman.

WHY OPPOSE THE LEAGUE?

There are very few people who oppose the proposed league of nations on general principles. There are fewer people who oppose the idealistic motives which prompted the incorporation of the league tenets. The main opposition to the league grows out of our mistrust of other nations. It is hard for some people to conceive the possibility of war within the league or of war by certain members or one member of the league against the other members of the league for the reason that the majority of the league members have been more or less in the limelight and public view and many large nations on the face of this old world have been lost sight of. Norway, Sweden, Russia, Denmark, the Netherlands and Spain are not included in the league plan to say nothing of Germany, Austria-Hungary and disgruntled China. There is no doubt in our mind but that the league is a step in the right direction, on the other hand it is such a momentous affair that it calls for the most searching study, the most keen criticism and a careful diagnosis. Our senators have a perfect right to pick the plan to pieces if they find a loose joint because if adopted before being found strong enough to stem the tide of international conflict it will most certainly land all the signatories on the shoals of warfare, the United States with the rest of them. Let them turn on the light on all the bickerings of diplomats. Let them get all the details and find out what our place will be under the sun under all the circumstances that might arise. That is what we have senators for; not simply to act as figureheads to ratify every act of a president. If the criticism of the senators is only idle oratory the American people are intelligent enough to see it. This is the moment when the United States is to decide whether she will resume her position as an independent nation minding her own business or whether she will join the European nations in a covenant which will make her a member of an international police force and embroil her, to a more or less extent, in every impending conflict throughout the world. It is a momentous question and regardless of the outcome of the squabble in the senate the time will come when we will be thankful that we had senators instead of dummy directors.

One of the things about the effectiveness of the league which puzzles us is the supplemental treaty of England and the United States to protect France. The making of this supplemental treaty is surely an acknowledgement of the ineffectiveness of the league itself.

SEA CONTROL.

The ambition to control the sea and the desire to have access to the sea have been fruitful causes of war. When Germany planned this war, she did not expect at one stroke to gain mastery of the seas, but she did intend to secure a control of Belgium, and possibly French, coast line from which she was not to be wrested. Austria-Hungary's oppressive attitude toward Serbia was tied up with her ambition to control the Adriatic. The empire of the Hapsburgs has been displaced in that region by the new Jugo-Slav state, and here enter the conflicting claims of the Jugo-Slavs and the Italians over the Adriatic littoral which affords one of the most difficult situations the peace conference will have to adjust. It is the old contest over seaports and sea control, says Leslie's Weekly. Russia has for centuries been handicapped by Turkey's possession of Constantinople, and though revolutionary Russia has never seemed to appreciate the importance of free exit to the Mediterranean, the naming of Constantinople as an international port by the peace conference will have great influence upon Russia's future development.

A German writer bewails the fact that Germany is helplessly delivered to France's lust for revenge. The German point of view is utterly incomprehensible to other minds. It ignores entirely the fact that this war was forced on France, that it was a war caused by the lust for conquest, and that it was waged on helpless nationalities with a brutality unparalleled in history. It looks on well merited punishment as revenge and acts and talks as though entitled to sympathy, consideration and leniency, says Baltimore American. If this is really the thought of the nation it is hard to see how it ever can be admitted on equal terms again to the society of nations.

Probably one result of the spread of democracy in Europe will be the throwing open of immense landed estates of private noble families to general cultivation. The withholding of acres of land for purposes of private hunting grounds for a few privileged ones, while herds of human beings are congested in city slums, with scarcely breathing space, will be among the anomalies of the future, in fact, the whole system of a small privileged class will topple in the new upheaval.

The British sending food to Vienna by the carload is such an extreme opposite to the idea of winning enemies by friendliness, that while the Viennese will eagerly receive it, the constitution of the Teutonic mind makes it altogether possible that the gift will excite more contempt than gratitude for the victors, for the short-sighted policy of thus strengthening an enemy race.

Incentive genius is at work on a system of radio communication which will carry the human voice a distance of 12,000 miles. It is not stated whether this is expected to simplify or still further complicate the multitudinous responsibilities of the post office department.

A Frenchman, noting that two months before the armistice Foch said the war was lost without more gasoline, calls petroleum "the life blood of victory." It was. And four-fifths of it came from the United States in a continuous and ever-swelling stream.

A minister says the American girls must learn to listen as well as the French girls do if they wish to hold the attention of the home-coming soldiers. Reckon the right soldier with the right thing to say can get a listener any time he's ready.

There are 28,000,000,000 tons of coal still to be mined, according to the calculations of engineers. Here's hoping then that we'll never live to see the time when we shall have to try to burn slate and coal dust again.

Our observation is that the average man stands out for a square deal for everybody, with four shades the best of it for himself. But there are difficulties in executing that program.

Dress Warm And Keep Feet Dry

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat, less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy possesses a collection of over twenty thousand coins, which is said to be the finest in the world.

BRITISH SPORTS HUNT MAN TO WHIP DEMPSEY

LONDON, July 18—Fight promoters and ring followers on this side of the big pond would like to see Jack Dempsey, the new American heavyweight champion, come over and display his wares in one of the London arenas. Since the close of the war the boxing game has flourished in the metropolis to an extent unparalleled in many years. With the return to peace the London public has been eager for every form of recreation, boxing included. Weekly shows are being given by half a dozen prominent boxing clubs and many clubs of lesser note. All are well patronized, which means that promoters, fighters, and all others active in the game are making money.

The fight fan here believes that England has a better crop of heavyweights at the present time than has America, Dempsey excluded. Should the new American champion encounter difficulty in finding a suitable opponent when he gets ready to re-enter the ring he undoubtedly will be invited to come over to this side and face one of the English heavyweights. There is little reason to doubt that one of the London clubs would be willing to make terms that would prove an inducement to Dempsey to make the trip.

Recently several heavyweight fighters have come to the front in England that give promise of proving superior to the best of the heavies that have been seen here in recent years. One of these is Joe Beckett, the Southampton lad, who has been moving down all comers the past year. One of Beckett's most recent victims was Bombardier Wells, who for some years has held the foremost place among the British heavyweight fighters.

Although he is getting along in years, Wells is still regarded as far from being "all in." This was proven by his defeat of such a seasoned fighter as Eddie McGoorty. But with all the advantage that comes of long experience in the game the Bombardier was no match for Beckett, a comparative novice as a fighter. From the first tap of the gong the Southampton boy showed himself the master of his opponent and in the fifth round he put Wells down for the count. Beckett's followers believe that with proper handling and a little more experience he would prove a worthy opponent for Dempsey.

Another of the new British heavyweights who has been giving a good account of himself in all his recent performances is Frank Goddard a former guardsman who won quite a reputation as a pugilist while still in the army. Goddard is a mountain of a man and is still in his early twenties. Some of the shrewdest critics in London predict a brilliant future for him. A match between Goddard and Beckett is a probability of the near future.

A match between Dempsey and Georges Carpentier would prove a strong drawing-card here. Carpentier has already entered into a contract whereby he has agreed to give his first fight in London when he re-enters the ring after his long military service. It is understood that the French champion is anxious to get back into the game. When the war broke out he was a millionaire in France, but the greater part of his wealth was invested in the coal mines in the vicinity of his home at Lens, so when he comes back to the ring he will be as a man after making another fortune.

Carpentier will re-enter the game under the direction of his old manager Deschamps. The latter, by the way, has become very rich. Rejected for the French army, he took over a modest little factory at La Guersche, and as a manufacturer of boxes in which to pack Camembert cheeses, he has made quite a pile of money. Today he is probably the wealthiest man who ever managed a boxer.

Taking Away Sin

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D.D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.—John 1:29.

It would seem that John the Baptist, who was the last and greatest of the prophets, should announce his great successor as the one fulfilling the prophecies reaching back to the garden of Eden; as the Son of David, the King of the Jews; as the great Prophet for whose coming the Jews had been looking for centuries; as the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. But he did not do so. He simply said, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

In the field of John's vision there was a black cloud of sin, out of which wrath was falling on men the world over. He saw men enslaved by sin. He saw that they were to die eternally on account of sin, and in Jesus he saw the world's Savior.

It seems strange that the greatest curse on man should be given a name containing only three letters; yet the greatest idea that man can entertain, as a name, contains only three letters—God. It may be fanciful, but there is possibly a suggestion that these two words, so short, should always be considered together. No God, no sin. "Sin is the transgression of the law." If there were no God to promulgate law there could be no sin. Sin was the ugly thing that separated man from God, and that now threatens to make that separation eternal, and none but God himself could take it away.

With very many sin is simply the transgression of the law of God that affects oneself or society; it is only vice or crime. It is altogether proper to speak of sinning against one's fellow men and against himself. A certain man, whose name is familiar because notorious within the last four years, sinned greatly against society at large, against the whole human race. If a man thinks he has preserved a conscience void of offense toward his fellow men he thinks that he is meeting all God's requirements. Man frequently speaks of transgression of the law as directly affecting himself and others, but often that man is altogether indifferent to the practical fact that there is a consideration far above this of what sin does, and that consideration is that sin affects God.

There is nothing needed now more than a sense of God. There are many who are utterly godless and they are not called atheists, but they are atheists practically. As far as interest in God is concerned God might as well not be. There are, however, some evidences that this sense of God is being realized as never before. A soldier in France wrote, "All idols are in the rear; everyone here at the front believes in God and the future."

In the Bible we have two very clear illustrations of sensitiveness to sin as offense against God. When Joseph was tempted by the wife of Potiphar he was saved by the thought, "How can I do this thing and sin against God?" Here was utter indifference to anything but the thought of sinning against God. The other case is that of David who prayed, "Against thee, thee only, have I sinned and done this evil in thy sight." Again, utter indifference to the consequences of his sin as touching himself and others. The same thought is reflected in the prodigal's words when he returned to his father. This recognition and confession of offense against God is the door through which the true penitent comes into a place of deliverance. It is here that he secures spiritual freedom, and that spiritual freedom is only realized when the guilt of sin is taken away.

The taking away of sin is real. The strong shoulders of the Son of God bear it away, as the scapegoat of old bore away the sins of Israel into the wilderness. If Jesus Christ is able to carry away the sin of the world it is quite reasonable to say that he can take away the sin of any man. There are some who fear that they may have sinned so grievously that their sin can never be taken away, but if Jesus Christ can take away the sin of the world, which certainly means all sin, the sin of the troubled sinner can also be taken away.

I lay my sins on Jesus,
The spotless Lamb of God.
He bears them all and frees us
From the accursed load.

RUSSIAN JEWS ARE AGAINST ALL BOLSHEVIK RULE

By FRANK J. TAYLOR

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 18.—Bolshevism is not a revolution by the Russian Jews for the Russian Jews, as is popularly believed, according to the bolsheviks. Investigating the way the Jews line up with regard to bolshevism leads to the conclusion that three-fourths of the Jews are against bolshevism.

This stand on the part of the majority of Jews is probably due to the fact that the Jews have been the heaviest losers among the little bourgeoisie of Russia. This is especially true of small cities. In the provincial districts most of the Jews were buyers and sellers and had gathered together small fortunes, usually from five to twenty-five thousand rubles. Today that sum is nothing, but in the old days it represented quite an amount, comparatively speaking, enough to enable operation of a small business.

Generally the Jewish merchant lost this fortune entirely, through confiscations of stocks in stores, or of warehouses of wool and cotton and grains. It was the Jew who lost heaviest because he had most. While fortunes of merchants were confiscated, either without payment or at low prices set by the state, the peasant was allowed to sell at market prices. Confiscation was not attempted with the peasant, who was regarded as a producer.

A typical case was called to the attention of the correspondent while he was interviewing the chief of the economic soviet in Moscow. Two Jews from the provinces reached Moscow and immediately put their case before the soviet for decision. They had been sent by the merchants of their village, almost all Jews, all of whom were required to give up wool and other goods they had invested in at a price set by the government. The peasants, on the other hand, were allowed to sell at a competitive price.

What the result of the protest was, the correspondent could not learn, since it had to be passed along to several soviets, and numerous yards of red tape had to be unrolled before the matter could be solved. Probably the goods were confiscated before the decision could be altered.

Similarly, in all towns the Jews have run the small shops which have been closed by the bolsheviks. The Jews were the ones who lost their means of support, and had to go to work at new places. The Jewish rabbi here has been against bolshevism from the beginning and has exercised a great influence over their people.

On the other hand, it is true that a large percentage of Jewish intellectuals, mostly men who have been the victims of the old government, have become leaders in the bolshevik movement.

This has been explained by the fact that under the old regime Jews were prevented from entering certain other lines of activity by laws which discriminated against the Hebrews. The Jews naturally took to intellectual pursuits and became writers, lawyers and thinkers. They welcomed any system which would guarantee them an equal opportunity. These intellectuals quickly adjusted themselves to the bolshevik ideas, and owing to their keenness and energy, many came out on top in the new government.

That the majority of bolsheviks are Jews is not true, it is evident. Probably they have a larger percentage of representation in governmental positions than the Gentiles, but every effort is made by the soviet government to prevent the issue from arising.

The bolsheviks are trying to prevent discrimination from being made against the Jews, and have succeeded remarkably well. The principal Jewish problem seems to be along the borders, where the armies are fighting. There the reported "pogroms" are causing bitter feeling. According to the bolsheviks, the "pogroms" resulting in the massacre of entire villages, are confined to the anti-bolshevik side of the line. The worst Jewish "pogroms" have been in the south, mostly in the Ukraine. Many villages

The United States Geological Survey has made public at Washington a report covering the first six months' operation of the bituminous coal mines of the United States, which shows that during the first half of the year the production of bituminous coal was more than 70,000,000 tons below the amount produced during the first six months of 1918.

If the present rate of production is not materially increased during the latter half of the year bituminous coal production for 1919 will fall 100,000,000 tons below the requirements of the country as estimated by the Survey in a recent report to Fuel Administrator Garfield.

Such a decrease, in the opinion of officials of the Survey and Fuel Administration, could mean but one thing—the greatest coal shortage in the history of the country.

The decreased production is almost wholly due, the analysis of the Survey shows, to the failure of consumers to buy their coal early in the year. The only way in which production can be thoroughly stimulated throughout the industry is for consumers to place at once orders for their fall and winter coal requirements. Mines cannot achieve their maximum efficiency unless there are orders on hand for their product. In making public its report the Survey says:

"The best time in the year for laying in stocks of coal for next winter is rapidly passing, with no evidence of general buying for this purpose. The rate of production has not varied greatly since the middle of May, and averaging about 30 per cent below last year, is apparently just sufficient to meet current consumption."

To meet the full requirements of the country, as estimated by the

Survey, production must be increased from an average of 8,125,000 tons per week during the first six months of 1919 to an average of 10,000,000 tons per week during the last six months of 1919. This means an increase of more than 30 per cent. A probable shortage of cars and a labor shortage promise to become limiting factors in coal production within a short time. The labor shortage is already felt in certain sections and a car shortage also is reported in certain fields in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia.

Bituminous coal operators throughout the country unite with the Geological Survey in predicting a widespread general coal shortage next fall and winter, unless consumers immediately place orders for their requirements and thus enable the mines to operate at a rate more nearly approaching full time output.

GEORGE AND JOHN ENJOY TEA TOGETHER

LONDON, July 16.—John Pershing, son of a Missouri railway foreman and a former country school master, had tea this afternoon in the garden of Buckingham palace with his majesty, the king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the sea and Emperor of India.

George said to John: "Nice afternoon, General."

John answered: "It is, your Majesty."

George: "Glad to see you back in London for the peace celebration Saturday, General."

John: "I am glad to be here, your majesty."

George: "You had a nice day in Paris at the fete, General?"

John: "Very nice day, your majesty."

George: "Let's have tea, General."

John: "With pleasure, your Majesty."

That's all they talked about—the weather and tea.

OTTO GOT THE CAT

An Ogden avenue woman possesses a half grown cat which is so afraid of a dog that every time one appears in the neighborhood the cat shins up a telephone pole in front of the house to a place of safety at the extreme top of the thirty foot pole.

The funny thing about the whole proceeding is that once the cat gets up the pole he can't get down again. In fact he simply refuses to even attempt to negotiate the descent of that pole and there he sits hour after hour and meows! meows! meows! Did you ever have a cat in a similar position sit right there next door to your bedroom and meow minute in and minute out for four long days or 96 hours or 5760 minutes? Did ya? Huh? Well, ask Johnny Martin about it and how it sounds, especially now that a man can't be driven to drink even tho he would.

A couple of weeks ago a mangy cur named Tommy to the top of the pole and he stayed there three days until Pete Barrett was induced to go up and do the rescue act. On Monday last the cat beat the dog to the pole by the mere skin of his teeth and when the frightened Tommy reached the top he sat right down and refused even to look toward the ground where he expected his deadly enemy to be located. He promptly set up his S. O. S. appeal and continued same without let up or intermission all day and night Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and till 11:30 o'clock Thursday. Many councils of war were held by the people of the community and the cat pitted at a distance but still he sat there and made the night and day hideous by his plaintive caterwauls. Then to add to the ill and the annoyance a boy of young lady friends of Tommy would be attracted to the foot of the pole every evening as soon as dusk fell and they would join their lamentations with his. Despite this nightly communion and all the seductive verbal wiles of the young lady cats Tommy stuck fast and only when a posse comitatus, headed by Martin, got ready to shoot Tommy off the pole to save his life did the owner get busy. Then she called the police. Chief Eadie armed himself with Otto, King of Porch Climbers, and went up—that is Otto went up the pole and rescued the cat and the whole neighborhood is rejoicing and hoping the dog wins the next race for the pole.

ARRESTED WIFE DESERTER

The local police picked up Robert L. Herritt, a New York Central yard brakeman, yesterday on a warrant from the office of Alderman J. P. Anthony, of Lock Haven. Her it deserted his wife and two small children at Lock Haven last May and as the family is destitute the arrest followed information made by the suffering wife.

Herritt was placed in the lock-up and a Lock Haven constable came to town at noon and took him back with him on the afternoon New York Central train.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

The two large buildings which are to be used for sanitary closets, shower baths and clothes lockers by the men employed at the Pennsylvania Hide and Leather company's plant here, are now under way and it will not be many weeks ere men will be at liberty to the free use of all these conveniences. Superintendent John Blake, who is always on the lookout for improvements that will benefit the large number of men who are employed under him, has been figuring for several years on making these improvements, and it has been only of a recent date that he was permitted to work out his plan. The employees certainly appreciate Mr. Blake's efforts to make the work more pleasant and especially to give each man a chance to take a refreshing shower bath after his day's work is completed. When the buildings are completed and equipped they will be up to date in every respect, and it will be about the only tannery of the kind in the state which has the conveniences that the employees of the Pennsylvania Hide and Leather company will enjoy.

The snake fight advertised to take place at the ball ground yesterday evening proved a great disappointment to those who gathered at the appointed place and who expected to witness an exciting combat. Rattler Pete and Black Jack were to be the competitors for the championship of Clearfield county. The fight to be has been the theme of conversation among the sporting element for several days past, and in the betting clique odds were offered that Black Jack would be an easy winner over his adversary Rattler Pete. The snakes were conveyed to the battle ground on time, 7:30 o'clock, Philadelphia time, and turned loose in a wire netting square. The spectators expected to see a battle royal start right off as soon as the snakes caught sight of each other. Great was their chagrin and disgust when they saw that neither the rattler nor black snake paid the least attention to the proximity of each other, but busied themselves in trying to find some loophole by which they might escape from confinement and each his life to its native heath, where, should they happen to cross each other's path there would be a battle worth anyone's while to witness. In fact the affair was a disappointment all the way around, to the spectators because the snakes refused to contest for supremacy and to the snakes because they were refused their freedom. The bills stated that an admission fee would be charged, and the money gathered in would be donated to the ball club. It is a foregone conclusion that a deadly feud exists between the rattler snake and the black but in yesterday's event each snake refused to take up the cudgel and go to it.

SUMMER FURS FALL

Oh! all the girls wear 'em
Just like in the harem,
Enhancing their beauty full score.

They're all net or maline
Thru which much can be seen
Sure, its veils that I mean—
Nothing more.

BY MARGARET RHOE

(Written for The United Press)

NEW YORK, July 18.—When lovely Queen Louise of Prussia always swathed her neck and throat in airy lengths of tulle, gossamer got busy. They said the reason for such an affectation was either a scar or a goitre. If we started hunting reasons for all the wild fashions of the present mode, goitres would only cover one end of the situation. At least they can't be the reason why the summer girls are all shedding their summer furs to un-velate Queen Louise's net neck. wathes. Possibly it's because they find the frothy scarves of maline and silk net much more cooling to the bare skin than mole and fox skin. Probably it's because they find them so becoming.

In white, navy, black and brown maline or silk net these newest neck-carves are finishing neck and neck as a winning hot weather fashion. Any color, however, is permissible and some of the vivid shades of green, cerise, purple and yellow add just the striking right color note to an all white costume. Often the maline is fashioned into a veritable scarf with the ends gathered together with a tassel as a finish, but more chic are the lengths in their virgin state, as 'twere, just as they are snipped off the bolt.

They are really the same maline lengths to which we have gone for many a season past to drape round our décolleté shoulders on festive evenings. Now we have merely lifted them from bare shoulders and a ball room setting to bare throats and an outdoor environment. Now we wear them steadily around the fashionable cloak, and our necks from A. M. until P. M. and adapt them as gracefully to the marts of trade as to the mazes

of Terpsichore. Cunning little close fitting draped turbans of the maline have been bobbing about on pretty heads for many weeks, but now as an added attraction they have sprouted lengths of the maline that twist and fluff about the throat and lower face in a seductive haremlike manner. Thus the scarf attached to the hat and the summer girl is apparently much attached to both.

Departing a bit from the all maline effect, a turban of gold tissue with a tobacco-brown maline scarf is a rich and harmonious combination, though the brown scarf fastened to a tu ban of the same toned maline makes a brown study that most anyone would delight to be in.

Getting away from these hybrid veil and scarf affairs and down to plain veils, though the term plain is no word for them, flowing lace veils are having a renewed vogue this summer. In white embroidered net or black Chantilly they make equally effective additions to the broadbrimmed flower-laden picture hats, and to the quaint coquettish mid-Victorian pokes.

The figured mesh veil with a deep plain chiffon border is very smart for street wear as well as for motoring. Hexagon, flit and plain oval mesh veils with elaborate lace, embroidered, fringed and ribbon edged borders drip from every brim and an elaborate decoative veil of white gleaming with tiny globules of crystal beads and fringed with the same glittering drops is indeed a veritable "veil of tears."

LETTER FROM OSCAR BARRETT

We received a letter from our friend Corporal Oscar Barrett the first of the week written on July 1st at Monton, France in which the Corporal appears to be somewhat peeved because he had been ordered to stand for nothing on a particular Sunday and had passed his bit, had everything ready and was writing a farewell letter on Friday evening when notified that the plan had been changed and his outfit was scheduled to remain in France a while longer. He says he thinks he will be home Christmas but won't bet on it.

He says Blair McCracken is at Camp Guthrie, just across the road from him. He says Mac is some lad and has a prize pup he is bringing home. He is en route for the States now.

Barrett and Guy Evans visited Guy Paice together and report some "time." He says the boys over there are strong on clothes, some of them having as high as eight suits of underwear. He was no hog and only has four or d shirts, four pairs of shoes, three caps, one hat, sixteen pairs of socks and two and one-half suits of clothes, and feels he can't stand it until he gets home. He wrote his letter at the Jewish Welfare Board's building and says his Hebrew friends have something on both the Red Cross and K. of C. as at the latter places the stuff is laid out for you to go and get, but at the Welfare house they carry cocoa and cakes to each service man while he is writing his letters.

He wants to know if there were any big trout landed and whether the "camel season" has opened around Clearfield.

3 500 ALIENS DEPART FOR HOME IN ONE DAY

NEW YORK, July 16.—It began to look here yesterday as though the exodus of 4,000,000 aliens from the United States as soon as emigration restrictions were removed, might come true. Thirty-five hundred aliens within an estimated average of $2,500 savings each sailed from here yesterday for their native lands—most of them never to return.

Many of those who went yesterday were Italians. All three of the steamships that took them—the Red Italia, the Caserta and the Giuseppe Verdi—sailed for southern European ports.

All Monday night a line four deep hemmed around the Customs House from Bridge street to Broadway. Each was examined to see that he had paid his income tax. Most of them were shipyard workers and munitions men who made "big money" during the war.

Comb Sage Tea Into Gray Hair

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready to use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle at little cost, at drug stores, known as Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This avoids a lot of mess.

While gray hair is not simply a matter of a few strands, but a condition of the hair, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a natural, so even. You just comb it through your hair with a small stick and at once your hair is gray hair has disappeared. After another application of the Compound becomes beautifully dark and soft and luxuriant. No need of any more young.

"Prayer flag," a unique talisman device employed by the people of Tibet. The flags are made in long lines, and with the exception of the bicolor they are supposed to be recording prayers for the benefit of those who put them up.
